

Nabilan — Timor-Leste's National Programme to End Violence Against Women and Children

Gender Equality · Good practice · Timor-Leste

Quality score: 41/100

Evidence strength: Moderate

Summary

An 8-year, AUD 32.1m Australian-funded programme (2014–2022) built Timor-Leste's first national evidence base on violence against women — finding 57–64% of ever-partnered women had experienced partner violence — while funding survivor services and justice reform.

Key dimensions

Dimension	Score
Transferability / replicability	2/3
Impact on gender equality	0/1
Effectiveness	0/1
Efficiency	0/1
Evaluated outcomes	0/1
Sustainability	1/1
Achievement / evidence	0/1
Gender-mainstreaming embedding	1/1
Curator validation	1/1

Evaluated by C-NAPSE

Data sources

C-NAPSE web research — accessed 2026-09-17

The Asia Foundation / Government of Timor-Leste, funded by the Australian Government \(DFAT\) — accessed 2026-09-17

Understanding Violence against Women and Children in Timor-Leste — Asia Foundation baseline study — accessed 2026-09-17

Australia–Timor-Leste Development Partnership Plan 2025–2030 \(DFAT\) — accessed 2026-09-17

Cite this — Evidoria. Nabilan — Timor-Leste's National Programme to End Violence Against Women and Children. Persistent ID: 5339a883-12fa-4028-9859-18166362b606.