

Pension Inclusion Moratorium — Closing Argentina's Old-Age Care-Work Pension Gap

Gender Equality · Good practice · Argentina

Quality score: 63/100

Evidence strength: Moderate

Summary

Argentina's pension moratorium let adults lacking 30 years of formal contributions — mostly women who had done unpaid care work — buy into the pension system, pushing elderly coverage above 90% and cutting old-age poverty from ~67.8% to about 11% by 2020.

Key dimensions

Dimension	Score
Transferability / replicability	2/3
Impact on gender equality	1/1
Effectiveness	1/1
Efficiency	0/1
Evaluated outcomes	1/1
Sustainability	0/1
Achievement / evidence	1/1
Gender-mainstreaming embedding	0/1
Curator validation	1/1

Evaluated by C-NAPSE

Data sources

C-NAPSE web research — accessed 2026-07-11

ANSES \(Administración Nacional de la Seguridad Social\) — accessed 2026-07-11

World Bank — Apella \(2022\), The Argentine pension system, its successes and challenges — accessed 2026-07-11

Redalyc — Amas de casa jubiladas: una revision sobre el Plan de Inclusion Previsional — accessed 2026-07-11

Amnesty International — Argentina: Protect older people's pension rights — accessed 2026-07-11

ANSES — official moratorium program page — accessed 2026-07-11

Cite this — Evidoria. Pension Inclusion Moratorium — Closing Argentina's Old-Age Care-Work Pension Gap. Persistent ID: da18ef10-60b5-4876-b566-6d27f6319b5a.